SPLENDID ATTRACTIONS FOR McKEAN COUNTY FAIR

At a directors' meeting of the McKean County Fair Association held last Thursday, a contract was signed for The Henodee Troupe of Japs and Watson's Comedy Dogs. These promise to be two great acts. A number of years ago the Association had a Jap Troupe which pleased the people. Although there has been a demand for another Jap Troupe, the Association, until this year, has been unable to book one. The Japs will give seven different acts in front of the grandstand each day of the Fair. They come highly recommended. The Japs go from the McKean County Fair to the Allentown Fair.

The Watson's Comedy Dogs are 12 in number and their trainer is a clever clown. This will be a great act for the children and it assures a laugh from the start to the finish.

M. E. SERVICE HELD IN BLACK FOREST.

Last Sunday, a goodly number of members and friends of the M. E. church, did what may be although a very unconventional thing. Instead of meeting for worship in their church building, they betook themselves to the "woods and temples hills," of Potter County, and there, in a beautiful sylvan glade, they united in worshiping and praising "the Giver of every good and perfect gift." More than eighty people, in fifteen autoes made the pilgrimage. The route from Smethport to Ole Bull Park, takes one through some of the loveliest scenery the eye of mortal man ever visioned. The Creator has been very lavish in His gifts, and unless one's soul is abolutely extinct, it were impossible to look out upon such majestic splendor without spiritual exaltation. It is a veritable garden of the Lord. On arriving at the Park, the friends assembled for worship, led by the Pastor. Several well known hymns were sung, after which the congregation listened to an appropriate address. Having performed our religious duties, the wants of the inner man were attended to. The State Forestry Dept. of our State is to be congratulated upon its efforts to make its lands an attractive picnicing place for our citizens. At Ole Bulls Park every facility is provided for the comfort of the people, and it is to be hoped that the efforts of the State Dept. may be properly appreciated. The return home was made by several routes, and it is safe to say that the majority of those who went were physically invigorated and spiritually refreshed. It was a great day, and though the pilgrimage was something of an innovation, all felt that the experiment was a real success.

For the beauty of the earth,
For the beauty of the skies,
For the love which from our birth
Over and around us lies,
Christ our God to Thee we raise
This our hymn of grateful praise.

THE CHINA LADY

IN THE toy shop a beautiful china lady stood on the shelf. In one arm she carried a bouquet of many-colored flowers and with the hand of her other arm she daintily held her prettily trimmed skirts ready to make a curtsey.

China lady did not look so very proud, but she was, for never once did she deign to glance below her at the toys on the floor.

Her pretty blue eyes were looking straight ahead and all the floor toys felt she would never look down to notice them.

None of them cared very much about this haughty lady's disdainful air but little French Doll, her pretty dark eyes flashed as she said to Teddy Bear and small Rocking Horse, "She need not feel herself so much above me, for I am as sure as sure can be that she was not made in France, and I was. I came from across the sea."

Teddy Bear did not know just how to reply, for he was not from across the water and he knew Rocking Horse was not imported either.

Rocking Horse began to nod his head and rock fast, shaking his wavy mane as if he heartily approved of all that French Doll had said.

But Teddy Bear thought it best, after thinking a second, to be frank about himself, so he said, "I was not made in France, either, and I think Rocking Horse was made in this country as well."

"Oh, but you are not proud and haughty as the China Lady is," answered French Doll. "You do not sit on the shelf and look down upon me and I love you both."

Teddy Bear felt very much relieved by now that things were explained, so he began to try to comfort little French Doll. "Don't you care if she does act haughty and proud," he said. "Brown eyes are prettier than blue. Don't you think so, Rocking Horse?"

For answer Rocking Horse began to rock furiously and nod his head up and down. In fact he rocked so hard that he hit the wall with the back of his rockers and shook everything on the shelf over him.

"Your clothes are real, too," said Teddy Bear, "and not china like hers. I am sure if you tried you could make a bow every bit as graceful as hers. Don't you think she could, Rocking Horse?"

Rocking Horse nodded very fast and began to rock and again his rockers thumped the wall, "bang, bang," and then from her high place down tumbled China Lady right on the wooden back of Rocking Horse and crash went her arm full of flowers.

Little French Doll forgot her hard feelings towards the China Lady. "Oh, you poor dear," she said. "Does it hurt much?"

Rocking Horse stood quite still, for he felt he was the cause of the accident because China Lady fell on his hard back, but he did not know that he had caused her to tumble from the shelf.

Teddy Bear looked at the broken arm with the pretty flowers. "It can be mended and made as good as new," he said. "Don't you cry about it."

"Oh, I shall not cry," said China Lady. "I hope they do not put me back on that shelf after they mend my arm. I had much rather be down here with all you toys."

"And to think I thought she was haughty and proud," said Little French Doll one day after China Lady had become good friends with all the floor toys. "She isn't a bit, and she wanted to live down here with us all the time."

"Which goes to show," said Teddy Bear, "that you never can tell what ladies are thinking about by the way they look or act; don't you think so, Rocking Horse?"

Rocking Horse shook his mane and wagged his head back and forth as if to answer that all ladies were a puzzle to him.

AT LEAST HAD HAPPY ENDING

Unfortunate Bird Cut Off in His Prime, but One Good Thing Might Be Observed.

A rare play on words was perpetrated upon the members of the Kiwanis club by Rev. A. H. Lord, rector of St. James' Episcopal church, in a recent address.

An industrious hen, Mr. Lord said, sat upon a nest of eggs so efficiently that she was rewarded with 12 children. Eleven were little girls and one was a little boy.

Soon the little boy grew large, with a fine tail, a beautiful red comb and a lusty voice. The mother and all of the little sisters were tremendously proud of brother and talked and thought about him a great deal.

Then one day the minister came unexpectedly to the house of the lady who cared for the entire family. Something had to be done to celebrate the occasion in a fitting manner. So one of the boys in the family was dispatched to secure a chicken.

Perhaps he was not overly intelligent, but, at any rate, he chose the remarkable brother to grace the table. Reports are lacking of how the minister enjoyed his meal, but the bereaved family was filled with woe. They wept and wept and wept.

But at length a more optimistic sister dried her tears somewhat and said between sobs, "Well, anyway, mother, we can always console ourselves with the fact that he entered the ministry."

"Yes," the mother answered tearfully, "and he would probably have never been called 'liberty cabbage.'"

On "Main Street" salad is still considered a foreign dish—something that the "French do," something that is served only when the preacher comes or when one wants to make a special splurge.

WHEN SALADS WERE 'GREENS'

Also Recalling the Days When All Vegetables Were Boiled Before They Were Served.

Salad is a peculiar thing. It is only about twenty years old in the corners of America. It is an imported product. The generation just before ours called the same thing "greens." Also they cooked the greens before they put them on the table.

It's a new idea that raw green vegetables provide a certain amount of mineral salts, vitamines and other necessories to health. The balanced diet is something that mother did not know anything about when she cooked for the chicken pie social in the church basement. The only salad known in those days was chicken salad and the only recognized "greens" in this was celery. If some advanced cook put in a little lettuce and an elder of the church happened to get it in his helping there would be a two-hour prayer on the next Wednesday night.

In the old days all salads were cooked. There was no such things as hearts of lettuce. In the spring we had "greens." In the winter we had boiled cabbage or what has recently been called "liberty cabbage."

On "Main Street" salad is still considered a foreign dish—something that the "French do," something that is served only when the preacher comes or when one wants to make a special splurge.

Tubular Springs.

It was Ernoult, the French engineer, who invented a spring formed of a coiled-steel tube, in which, it is claimed, are found certain advantages over springs made of solid metal. It is well known that a tube is much stronger and more rigid than a bar of the same material of equal weight, from which it might be assumed that a tube would not form a flexible spring. But Ernoult has, it appears, proved that a tube is more flexible than a bar of the same exterior dimensions. It will be observed that the two principles are not in conflict. Owing to its smaller mass and consequently smaller inertia the tubular spring responds more quickly, and should, for that reason, be specially useful for many purposes, particularly in aviation.—Exchange.

Saved the Day.

At a dinner party which I recently attended the maid failed to bring my serving; the hostess, not observing this, began eating and the others followed.

We had been reading our place cards and having a little fun over them. Mine read, "Because you're like a rose at morn I'm placing beside you a thorn" (Mr. Thorne).

Soon the guests began to notice my dilemma and to look embarrassed, either for me or my hostess, I don't know which, so to save the day I said, "Because you are so very thin, I know you never eat a thing."

Not a good rhyme, but the laugh went round. I was served, and everything went well.—Detroit Free Press.

Costumes, Ancient and Modern.

The long, one-piece dress so much in vogue today is similar to that worn by the women of ancient Egypt. The words of an account describing the dresses worn by Egyptian women more than 3,000 years ago might easily be mistaken for lines from a modern newspaper story of clothes worn by the women of fashion at some smart affair: "The dresses of women consisted of a loose robe reaching to the ankles, with tight or full sleeves, fastened at the neck with a string. Over these robes they sometimes wore a sort of petticoat secured at the waist by a girdle. The women of the higher classes secured the loose dress at the waist with a colored sash."—Boston Globe.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS

AUTO HITS POLE NEAR BRIDGE AT MT. JEWETT

MT. JEWETT, July 5. As the result of an accident which occurred last night about 200 feet from the overhead bridge at the west end of this borough, John Schaffer, aged 59 years is in the Kane Summit hospital with numerous gashes in his face sustained when the car he was driving crashed into a telephone pole.

Schaffer was accompanied by Theodore Naller, also of Mt. Jewett, who emerged from the wreck uninjured. It is learned that the Overland Four driven by the men ran into the rear of a new Wills-St Claire roadster on the other side of the bridge just before the wreck. This car was the property of Wm. Kane of Kane and was occupied by himself and wife. The roadster sustained some damage from the collision and while inspecting it the owner heard the noise of the crash when the Overland hit the pole a few hundred feet beyond.

He went to the assistance of the injured man, who was quickly brought to the hospital here where his wounds were dressed.

Fully half of the diameter of the pole from the ground up for several feet was shattered by the impact of the speeding car, and people who examined the wreck and its surroundings marveled that both men were not killed. Although Schaffer is painfully hurt he is nevertheless extremely lucky that he is alive, while Nallers escape from all injury is most miraculous. The car sustained considerable damage.

SECOND SIGHT

The young lady palmist at the church bazaar said to one of her girl clients, "I see by your hand you are going to be married."

"Wonderful," said the girl.

"You are engaged to a man named Wilkins," continued the amateur seer.

"How amazing," gasped the girl. "Surely the lines on my hand can not reveal the name."

"Lines," sniffed the palmist. "Who said anything about lines? You are wearing the ring I returned to Mr. Wilkins three weeks ago."

WARREN PEOPLE HURT IN AUTO CRASH.

WARREN, July 6. A report from the Jamestown General Hospital yesterday afternoon is to the effect that Mrs Henry Kittner underwent an operation for the removal of a blood clot on the brain, yesterday forenoon. The clot was received in an auto accident Wednesday afternoon, and the chances for her recovery are favorable. Albert Fisher another victim of the accident regained consciousness during Wednesday night and was discharged from the hospital yesterday.

The Hudson touring car, driven by Henry Kittner, employed in Conewango Refinery No. 2, and a resident of Akeley, plunged into a ditch a half mile east of Panama, N. Y. In the car were Mr. and Mrs. Kittner and their daughter Ethel; Albert Fisher and daughter, Ethel, of Parker Street, this city.

Eye witnesses of the accident state that the car was being driven at a high rate of speed up an incline when it suddenly swung across the road and piled itself into a ditch.

Mr. Fisher and Mrs Kittner were both rendered unconscious. Ethel Kittner had both ankles broken; Mr Kittner sustained a lacerated arm and Ethel Fisher is suffering from lacerated fingers.

The party left Warren Wednesday forenoon in happy spirits and had planned on a pleasant days outing.

The touring car was damaged beyond repair. Fenders were twisted into an unrecognizable shape. Wheels were demolished and the top was completely shattered. Those who witnessed the wreck wondered that any escaped with their lives.

OLEAN GIRL ORDERED DEPORTED TO RUSSIA BY FEDERAL JUSTICE.

Paula Patton, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Patton, of No. 630 East State street, will be deported to Russia despite the statute of limitation under a decision handed down by Federal Judge Winslow in New York city yesterday.

Judge Winslow's decision, Assistant United States Attorney James C. Thomas said, practically settled the cases now pending before Judges Cooper and Goddard. Governor Smith recently petitioned the President to allow the Goldman boy to remain.

Paula Patton arrived in New York from Rusia with her mother in 1914. Immigration officials declared her to be a mental defective and immediately ordered her deported. A few days after she left for Europe, war was declared and the liner ordered back to New York. She was then released on bond and has been a resident of Olean since with the exception of the periods when she was called to the metropolis by the authorities for further mental tests.

In the meantime her father became an American citizen, but according to Judge Winslow this does not affect the case as the exclusion was ordered previously, and the girl has never been officially admitted. For this same reason, he said, the statute of limitations, which under ordinary circumstances would outlaw the case in five years, does not hold.

The little family was heart torn today when questioned by a Herald reporter. Mr. and Mrs. Patton said that he had made no plans preferring to wait until he received formal notice of the decision in the mail. He expects a letter Monday. Although it was previously understood that Mr. Patton would accompany Paula to Russia, the father reiterat that his plans had not been made. He hinted that the case might be appealed.

A number of prominent Olean residents have become deeply interested in the case since it came before the immigration authorities and they have worked untiringly in Paula's behalf.

CARE COLIDE AT COLEGROVE.

A Collision occurred Saturday evening near Stranburg's house at Colegrove about 10:00 o'clock between a Ford Sedan driven by Cy Doty of Betula and a Chevrolet coupe, driven by a man from New York State. The Ford car was coming from Betula and as the Chevrolet which was going in the opposite direction passed it there was a crash in which both cars suffered considerably, the Ford losing a wheel and having its axle bent, the Chevrolet received a broken fender. No one in either car was injured.

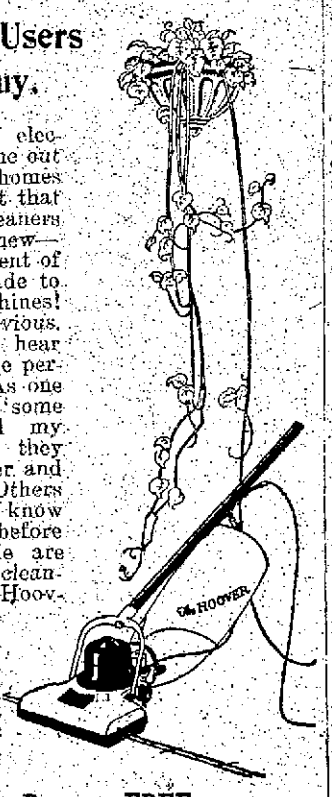
Talk to Hoover Users Before You Buy.

Although there is an electric cleaner in only one out of every three wired homes—and despite the fact that a majority of these cleaners are comparatively new—already from 30 per cent of our sales are being made to owners of other machines! The conclusion is obvious. And, from what we hear from Hoover users, the percentage will grow. As one woman aptly puts it, "some of my friends liked my Hoover so well that they sold their other cleaner and bought Hoovers. Others are sorry they didn't know about The Hoover before buying. Many people are satisfied with their cleaners until they see The Hoover, work."



Satisfied users of The Hoover, more than any other factor, have made it the largest selling electric cleaner; be guided by this in your choice.

THE KIND OF IMMIGRANTS WE NEED

Quality rather than quantity in immigration is the President's idea. It is the right one. The quoto law has reduced the quantity. Now we must find a way of imporving the quality.

Italy has already undertaken a sifting process at her end. This is a course that other foreign governments might follow to advantage. But we ourselves can do a good deal in that way through our consular system.—Philadelphia Enquirer

HARDING RUNS SMACK INTO BIG NORTHLAND PROBLEM. WHEN HE LANDED.

Wrangell, Alaska, July 9—President Harding, landed here today, greeted thousands of people of Wrangell and Peteraburg, and in an address delivered from the steps of the frame court house declared he came to Alaska " as an apostle of understanding" and wanted his administration to go down in history as "a period of understanding."

"That is what the world and the nation most need," the President declared. The President was welcomed to Wrangell by the Rev. Mr. Diven, pastor of the Presbyterian church, who introduced him to the cheering crowd.

The party landed here this morning to find the town, once the chief trading section of the Hudson's Bay Company, decorated with flags and flooded with the sunshine of a perfect summer day. Here the party saw its first totem poles. The President and Mrs. Harding were presented with a huge basket of strawberries and a bouquet of mountain poenies.

Mr. Harding ran smack into the chief problem of this northland the mounent the U. S. S. Henderson arrived—the question of exclusive fishing rights now enjoyed by the canneries.

The Indians protest they are unable to catch enough fish to feed their families and earn a living since the canneries set traps in the creek.

"Mr. President," said Alexander, "the Indian used to have plenty to eat. They had to go only a half mile to get plenty of game. They could go to a creek and catch a boatload of fish. The white man came and then the cannery .

"I have no money to pay bills, I can't buy food in stores and my wife is hungry I go to the creek and find cannery traps at the mouth. I see thousands of fish in the traps. The tails wiggle. I cannot have fish. I must have fish.

"I say, 'Cannery man you give me fish.' He say, 'Sure, how many do you want?" I say one fish. Not like that in old days."

Indian girls in white dresses surrounded the President when he landed and prsuaded him to pose for pictures.

ALASKA—TREASURE HOUSE OF THE NATION

President Harding in on the ocean on the way to Alaska. When he goes into that territory he will have been the first President of the United States to set foot in what is undoubtedly a treasure house of the Nation.

What was once so flippantly called "Seward's Folly" has proved to be the richest investment ever made by the government of this country. Th formal purchase price agreed upon by our Secretary of State was $7,200,000, but up to the present time it has cost a total of $200,000,000. And what have we taken out of it? Well, up until 1922 we had brought from its mines and fisheries and fur industries products to the value of $1,100,000,000. Which is what might be called a pretty tidy profit. But everybody knows that its surface has only been scratched, and that eventually it will produce wealth running high in the billions.

I is difficult for the average person properly to visualize the size of Alaska . We know that it is very large and very inaccessible, but few of uswith the taointaionetarodilntao of us get anything like the right conception of its immiensity. It contains 590,884 square miles. It is one-fifth as large as the total territory of the forty-eight States of the Union. It is as extensive as the entire Louisiana purchase. We might take four or five of the countries of Europe and place them in Alaska and still have enough room left to create an empire.

This territory, fabulously wealthy and seemingly endless in its extent, has its contradictions. Its population has fluctuated, and is now estimated at 60,000, one-half of which is made up of Indians, half-breeds and Eskimos. Its commerce has been equally puzzling, showing at times a decline in industry Yet if we go deep enough we find plausible explanations for this condition. Our treasure house has been kept sealed. In the name of conservation we have halted the development of Alaska. It is time for a change of policy This is a matter that must engage the attention of President Harding and the members of his Cabinet as they view this wonderland

Governor Bone pointed out some of the needs of the territory in a message which was transmitted to the last Congress by the Secretary of the Interior One of the pressing necessities is better railroad facilities, both for business and for tourists. Another is a colonization plan to be operated jointly by the railroads and the government; a third is the vesting of the jurisdiction of territory in a single department of the government, instead of in thirty-five bureaus as at present; and the last is liberal mining and land laws to stimulate enterprise and encourage settlement.—Philadiphia Inquirer.

Six thousand miles is the yearly output of telephone cable of the Western Electric Company, the manufacturing branch of the Bell System. These cables contain 2,430,000 miles of copper wire.

YOUR HAND

How to Read Your Characteristics and Tendencies—the Capabilities or Weaknesses That Make for Success or Failure as Shown in Your Palm

THE HAND OF AN ACTOR

IN THE first place, to recognize whether a person, male or female, is or will be successful on the stage in playing dramatic or tragic parts, note whether the fingers are long and crooked. That is a good sign. Long fingers denote careful attention to details, and if the hand is wide and open, with the fingers widely separated, freedom of thought and independent action are indicated.

The mount of Venus (ball of the thumb) should be well criss-crossed or grilled, to denote inspiration and assumed passion. Next note whether the second phalanx of the thumb is long, to show intellectual power. The mount of Luna should be unusually long, reaching well up on the outside of the palm toward the line of the heart, to show great imagination and eloquence, so essential to the actor of dramatic or tragic parts. Courage also is shown by a strong mount of Luna.

TWO INJURED IN EVENING BRAWL.

As the result of a Fourth of July celebration in one of the rooms of the St. James hotel Mary Leddy is in the Bradford hospital suffering from a blackened eye, bruises and contusions about the face while Redmon Sloan and J. J. Connors are in police station held on open charges.

They were arrested early this morning following an alleged brawl during which the woman sustained her injuries and Mr. Sloan got a severe cut on his wrist from which blood flowing profusely. He was attended by Dr. Kervin at police headquarters and was reported resting well at press time. Later reports from the hospital indicated Mary Leddy's condition is not serious and that she will recover within a few days.

When police arrived on the scene summoned by call from the hotel office, Mr. Sloan was on the floor in a pool of blood. The Laddy woman was screaming for help and had aroused hotel guests who thronged the corridors Connors was not on the scene but officers found him about a block away making away from the hotel He was brought to the station in the police wagon.

Mr. Sloan was carried to headquarters and the blood from the wound in his wrist tracked the street. He was weakened from the loss of blood when the doctor arrived. Dr. Sewart was summoned to attend the Leddy woman who was later removed to the hospital. A large crowd gathered at the hotel and at police headquarters.

When questioned by the police Mr. Sloan averred there had been no fight and insisted on taking the entire blame for the affair. He said the trio had had a party in his room and he had started to take a drink from a glass when the vessel broke in his hand and caused he injury to his wrist. Moved by the pain, he flung the broken glass from him. The pieces of glass struck the Leddy woman he believes.

This was partly corroborated by Connors, who also denied there had been an altercation and expressed much surprise when told that the woman had been hurt. He said he had left the room as soon as Mr. Sloan had cut himself and did not know how the woman could have been hurt.

At the hotel Mary Leddy was in no condition to make any statement. Her shrieking at the hotel was devoid of any meaning.—Era July 6.

LIFE

ONWARD, onward speed the years,
With their weight of hopes and fears;
Trials lurking here and there,
Joys to ease the press of care;
Light and shadow, sun and rain,
Alternating, peace and pain—
But beneath the stress and strife
Essence of rich, pulsating life,
In whose depths we find the stir
Leading on to Character.

BASIS FOR DAIRY INDUSTRY

Don't Wait in Meadows for Cow to Back Up to Be Milked—Waste Converted Into Milk.

"Don't sit down in the meadow and wait for the cow to back up to be milked—go after the cow." The basis for the whole dairy industry is the cow, and if farmers are going to utilize to the best advantage the quantities of roughage that annually are wasted on every farm they must go after the cow.

There is no way to convert the corn, the hay, the clover, the straw, and the abundance of other forage into a marketable form so quickly and so economically as by feeding to the dairy cow. She works day and night, summer and winter, week days and Sundays, in flood and drought, to convert the unmarketable waste of the farm into a finished and valuable product of human food.

The first thing is to get the cows. Profits are then assured.

"SPUDDING SHOE" FELL . . . . UPON HEAD OF WELL WORKER

Charles Buhl, oil well contractor of Tionesta Ave., met with a painful accident this morning while working on the American lease on the South Settlement road. The spudding line broke in the well where he was working and the spudding shoe fell with great force striking Mr. Buhl on the head cutting a frightful gash that required about eighteen stitches to close and also bruising his left arm severely. Mr.Buhl was brought to the office of a local physician where his injuries were dressed and he was then removed to his home.He is expected to eventually recover, but his injury is a severe one.—Kane Republican, July 2.

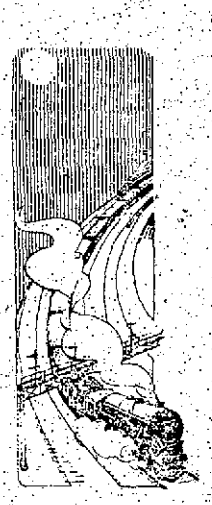
Railroad History in 1923



DURING the remainder of the present year the railroads will be confronted with the task of handling the greatest volume of traffic in American history. The demands for freight service in that period seem certain to exceed the peaks of war time and the boom of 1920.

To make good in 1923 means that all previous records must be broken. That is a big job for railroad managers and employes. There must be no failure—for failure would be a national disaster. In meeting the situation the railroads have solemnly pledged themselves to a vast program of concerted and co-operative action.

The success of that program is contingent upon the wholehearted support of the public, the loyalty of every man in the railroad service, and freedom from the ill-timed and demoralizing interjection of politics. Any man who strives to make the railroads a political football in 1923 when they are grappling with the most difficult and momentous task in their history, may be stigmatized as an enemy of good government.

LIBBY COSTANZO GIVES PROMISE OF LANDING IN BIG LEAGUE SOON

It will be of interest to local fans to learn that Libby Costanzo, former pitcher of the Lewis Run Reds, who had a try out with the Baltimore Orioles and who was farmed out to the Crisfield, Md., club and later sent to the Penny, N. Y., club is making good with that team. He is pitching a brand of ball that will soon win him a recall to the International league, in the ranks of the Orioles. Jack Dunn, manager of that champion club announced that Costanzo needed a little seasoning before he could make fast company, but said he was a comer.

The big right hander seems to be fulfilling Dunn's prediction as in his last nine starts he has won eight victories. His only defeat was the loss of a tough pitchers' battle that went 10 innings against Dover, Del. In Costanzo's last three games he has not been scored on, and in a game on the Fourth of July he struck out 16.

The Lewis Run hurler seems destined for a career in the majors. He is still young being on the bright side of 25. He is a brother of C. E. Costanzo of Lewis Run.—Bradford Era, Tuesday.

DAIRY FACTS

Mixtures Favored for Feeding Dairy Calves

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Dairy calves in their second week will begin nibbling at grain, if any is available, and by the time they are one month old will often eat a half pound a day. Young calves relish wheat bran, which is often used in grain mixtures at the start. Corn has a desirable effect upon cattle of all ages and is available on most farms. It helps to make up for the fat removed from skim milk. Experiments have shown that cracked corn is better than ground corn for young calves. The United States Department of Agriculture recommends that bran and cracked corn be made the basis of the feed mixture whenever possible. Ground oats is a very good feed, but oats are not so generally grown as corn and usually cost more per unit to feed than corn and bran. The department recommends any of the following mixtures as suitable for young calves:

1. Three parts cracked corn and 1 part white bran.

2. Three parts cracked corn, 1 part wheat bran, and 1 part ground oats.

3. Three parts cracked corn, 1 part wheat bran, 1 part ground oats, and 1 part linseed meal.

4. Five parts cracked corn, 4 part wheat bran, 1 part ground oats, and 1 part blood meal.

5. Oats, ground.

Some time during the third month calves will probably be eating about 3 pounds of grain a day. When the grain is fed with the separate milk it should never be mixed with the milk, and it is questionable whether there is any advantage in soaking or boiling.

Change Calf Gradually From Whole to Skim Milk

When the calf is from two to four weeks old, whole milk can be replaced gradually with skim milk. The exact time of the starting of the change will depend upon the condition of the calf. Upon the first day of the change, replace one-half to one pound of the whole milk with an equal amount of the skim milk. The second day a like substitution will be made, and so on each day, until the calf is receiving nothing but skim milk. This makes for a gradual change and no ill results will follow. The skim milk will be increased in amount as the calf grows in size and gets older.

When the calf is about six weeks old it should be receiving about 16 pounds of skim milk daily. The skim milk feeding of the calf may be continued until the calf is from 8 to 10 months old. Calves may be weaned younger than this if it is necessary, but it would be much better if the feeding of the skim milk could continue until the calf is 8 or 10 months old.—Extension Service, Colorado Agricultural college.

Depraved Appetites of Cows May Be Dangerous

Pregnant cows are apt to chew and swallow all manner of foreign substances, including rags, bones, leather, bark, dirt, crockery, paper, and even clothes off the line. This vice usually subsides after calving, but in many more instances all of the cattle in the herd seem to have the same bad habit. It may prove dangerous or fatal in some cases, for where vines, nails, or other sharp objects are swallowed they tend to penetrate the wall of the second stomach, diaphragm and sac of the heart, causing traumatic pericarditis. Be careful not to let wires from tags or sacks get into the feed or where cattle can get at them. Wire brushes sometimes used to scrub out feed troughs and mangers are also dangerous and have caused many fatal attacks of the disease mentioned. Depraved appetite, or pica as it is technically called, and constant licking and smacking the tongue and lips, are, as a rule, the evidences of indigestion due to incomplete or unsuitable rations.

DAIRY NOTES

* * *

Cows need as much care for the summer as for the winter, only of a different nature.

* * *

The milk pail and other containers have been found to be the greatest source of contamination.

* * *

Cows will do best if allowed as much green feed as they can handle. Caution should always be taken that they do not gorge themselves when they are unaccustomed to green feed.

* * *

Dairy animals relish green sweet corn exceedingly. It has wonderful qualities for sustaining milk flow in hot weather.

* * *

The average production of the dairy cows of this country can be increased fully 20 per cent through a better system of feed and care.

* * *

Use great care in milking to insure against barn flavors which usually get into the cream through careless methods in milking, which allow dirt to drop into the milk.

DAIRY

Some Requirements for Right Start of Calves

The dairy calf six to eight months old should be provided with salt. It is best to keep a small box in the calf pen or stall with salt in it at all times. The calf will then take just what is needed.

More than 56 per cent of the calf's body is made up of water; and for digesting the feed, regulating the body temperature, and other body purposes the calf needs 4 to 6 gallons of clean, fresh water every day. So the club boy should see that his calf has all the water it wants and that it is watered during warm days three times.

Sunshine is necessary for normal growth of the calf, but like most good things the calf can get too much; therefore, see that your pasture has plenty of shade to which the calf can go to lie down and chew its cud during the heat of the day.

When the dairy calf is weaned from skimmilk, it should be eating grains and hay well. A good legume hay, like alfalfa, peavine, soy bean, or lespedeza, should be fed. This hay is necessary to furnish minerals to build bone, to supply protein for muscle building, and to furnish bulk for developing large feed capacity.

During the "fly season" a liberal use of the curry comb and brush will help keep the hair silky and the skin oily, both of which will tend to keep off flies.

Teach the calf to lead by the halter this summer. The best way to do this is to lead the calf to pasture each morning and back to the barn at night.

Tuberculosis Introduced Into Healthy Dairy Herd

Tuberculosis may be introduced into a healthy herd by any of the following means:

By the addition of an animal that is affected with the disease; therefore animals should be purchased only from herds known to be free from tuberculosis, or from herds under supervision for the eradication of the disease.

By feeding calves with milk or other dairy products from tuberculous cows; this frequently occurs where the owner purchases mixed skim milk from the creamery, and feeds it to his calves without first making it safe by boiling or pasteurization.

By showing cattle at fairs and exhibitions; reports have indicated that numerous herds have become infected through mingling with infected cattle at shows or by occupying infected premises.

The shipment of animals in cars which have recently carried diseased cattle and which have not been disinfected properly.

In most cases the outward appearance of the animal bears no relation to the degree of infection. The disease frequently develops so slowly that in some cases it may be months or even longer before any symptoms are shown; therefore be on the safe side and have your herd tested.

Cows Require Material for Production of Milk

To keep the summer milk checks up to normal, the cows require a little special attention at this time of the year. In spite of good pastures, grass is apt to be tough and not nearly so appetizing as it was in May or June. Hence the cows are going to stand around in the shade instead of putting away material for milk production.

This all means that the cows need a little grain at milking time during the late summer months and a little silage, too, if you have it. Green oats and peas or green corn are very good, as well as many other forage crops, cut green and fed during milking time. Here's a good grain mixture to be used while the cows are on pasture:

200 lbs. cornmeal
150 lbs. cottonseed meal
150 lbs. ground oats
150 lbs. gluten feed

Feed the grain mixture according to the way the cow responds. If a cow will not respond to grain feeding in the summer, she isn't worth keeping.

At the New Jersey agricultural experiment station the cows are being sprayed night and morning with a reliable spray that kills the flies. As a result, the cows stand better for milking and since they are not bothered with the flies they have time to eat their grain. Furthermore, when the milker is swatting flies and the cow is switching her tail around in his face he isn't apt to take much interest in how much milk the cow gives.

Unprofitable Cows Kept Simply for Amusement

Not over a third of the so-called dairy cows of the United States are profitable to their owners. Ten million "loafer" cows are milked whose yield is worth less than their feed. Their owners seem to keep them for the sole purpose of milking them fourteen times a week, cleaning out after them, and otherwise enjoying their society.

DAIRY FACTS

Dairy Animals Help in Country's Meat Supply

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

About 17 per cent of the matured dairy animals in this country find their way to the slaughter and packing plants, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. If this percentage is applied to the number of matured dairy animals reported on farms by the last census, and the average live weights and dressing yields are used in calculating the beef production, the result shows about 1,502,450,000 pounds of carcass beef produced from dairy cattle during the year 1920. This quantity represents more than 28 per cent of the total beef production of the United States for that year. Probably 80 per cent of all the calves slaughtered are of dairy breeding. If this percentage is applied to the total number of calves slaughtered in 1920 and the resulting figure multiplied by the average live weight and dressing yields, the amount of veal produced by dairy calves is about 560,647,000 pounds for the year 1920.

The principal conditions which cause dairy cows to be discarded for milk production purposes are old age, disease, physical defects, low milk yield, and sterility. Many old dairy cows and others that are unprofitable as milk producers are fattened for a short period and then sold for beef. When properly fed such cows make rapid gains, although the tendency is to accumulate fat externally and in the body cavities rather than to produce a well-marbled flesh. About 85 per cent of the cow carcasses are graded as common or lower, and the meat is used largely in the preparation of sausage and canned meat.

Bulls that are no longer desired in the herd for various reasons make up a part of the meat from dairy cattle. They are seldom suitable for dressed beef, a large proportion of the rounds being used for dried or smoked beef and the remaining portions of the carcasses for sausage.

While the quality of beef produced from mature cows and bulls is of lower grade, that is not necessarily true with respect to the veal obtained from dairy calves. Probably 95 per cent of the male and 50 per cent of the female dairy calves are slaughtered as calves. Most of these animals, if properly handled and slaughtered while young, produce a high grade of veal.

Comfort in Hot Weather Necessary for Dairy Cow

During the hot summer months many high producing cows are prevented from giving their normal supply of milk by carelessness of their owner in not supplying some one of the many necessary comforts for hot weather milk and butterfat production.

A cow in milk requires about 100 pounds, or 12.5 gallons, of water daily, and heavy producing cows frequently double this amount. During hot weather a cow must have the normal supply of water and an added amount necessary for adjusting her supply from normal to hot weather needs.

The question of how often cows should be watered, when they are not kept with a constant supply before them, varies with the condition of the weather, kind of feed, etc. It is safe to say, however, that cows in milk should have water at least three times a day.

Profitable Cow Ought to Produce Much Milk

It is pointed out by successful dairymen that to be profitable a cow ought to produce at least 5,000 pounds of milk in a year. In producing this quantity of milk, her butterfat would amount to about 200 pounds. In addition to the sale of butterfat, the skimmed milk, the manure, and the calf must be reckoned as of value.

Daily Water Supply Is of Greatest Importance

Cows which produce 25 pounds of milk a day require 75 pounds or more of water daily, and instances are on record in which heavy milkers have consumed more than 300 pounds of water a day. A gallon of water weighs eight pounds.

Young Calves Should Be Fed Good Grain Ration

Young calves should be fed grain as soon as they will eat it. Ground oats, corn chop and wheat bran, mixed in equal proportions, constitute a good grain ration. Feed twice daily all calf will clean up, remembering also that calves must have plenty of milk.

Value of Soy Beans.

Regarding the value of soy beans for milk cows, the Iowa station says that soy beans are worth $60 a ton when oil meal is worth $45.

High Quality Butter.

High quality butter is in the greatest demand and it is natural that creamery men should be willing to pay more for the better grades of cream.

A good cow will always give good returns for feed consumed as long as she is fed judiciously.

OLD MAN LOST ALL NIGHT.

Keating Summit people were considerably worried over the whereabouts of Waltr Haynes last Sunday. Mr. Haynes, who is 63 years of age, was the victim of a severe illness about a year ago and since that time neither his mental nor physical condition has been normal. Saturday morning he wandered from his home at what is known as Half Mile and the next morning the whole neighborhood was alarmed. Fully forty men and boys organized themselves into a searching party. After hunting for a time the barking of a dog owned by Albert Archer attracted the attention of Harry Huntington, formerly a resident of Coudersport. Upon investigation it was found that the dog was calling attention to the lost man. Huntington is of the opinion that they would have passed without seeing the old gentleman had he not investigated the barking. Mr. Haynes, although exposed for 20 hours seemed none the worse for the experience—Potter Enterprise, July 5.

FIVE PEOPLE WERE IN DEADLY PERIL UNTIL HELP REACHED THEM

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Ellicot, daughter Helen, of 314 Bayard street and Mr. and Mrs. George Pass of 312 Bayard street this city, had a thrilling experience Wednesday when the automobile in which they were riding, plunged drown a steep embankment into the Allegheny river near Red House.

The party had started out for a day of enjoyment and had visited Olean, Bradford and Salamanca and were on their way to Jamestown when two miles west of Red House the steering wheel came off and the car swerved to the side of the road, hit a telephone pole and then went over the bank and down into the river.

The car and occupants were nearly submerged and were saved from drowning by the prompt action of the men tearing a hole in the top of the car while the whole party shouted for help.

Men, attracted by the calls for help were soon at the river bank and a long chain was thrown to the imperilled motorists and they were drawn through the water to safety one by one. The women in the party were immediately taken into the care of Sheriff Brad of Randolph N. Y., who happened to be one of the many attracted to the scene and he took them to his home where they were cared for and furnished dry garments. All suffering considerably from shock and remained at the sheriff's house until yesterday afternoon, when they were brought to Kane by George Calwell who went after them.

The Elliott car had to be towed down the river for a mile before a place could be found where it could be landed on account of the steel banks, and it is now in a garage at Salamanca.

Many cars were passing this point about the time the accident occurred and within a few minutes fully a hundred had stopped and the occupants offered aid and transportation to the victims of the accident. Aside from shock and wetting none of the party were injured and congratulate themselves upon their narrow escape from death.—Kane Republican, Friday.
